Welcome William Scott!

The APMA REdRC was developed as an online educational resource to further the education of podiatric residents on a variety of topics. Lecture topics are based on the competencies identified by the Council on Podiatric Medical Education (CPME).

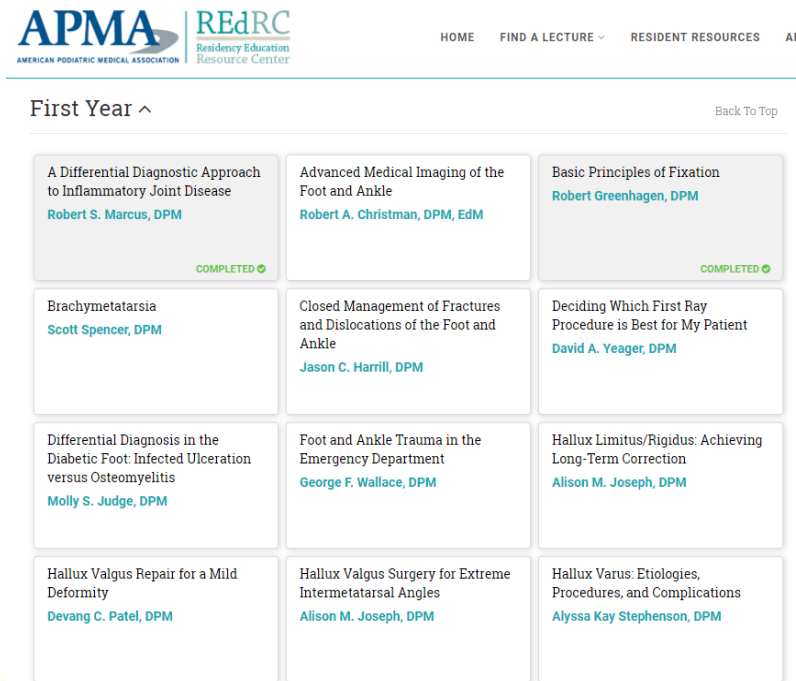

Thanks to the generous support of our sponsors, the REdRC is a free resource, exclusively for APMA-member residents.

REdRC

- Lectures tailored for each year of residency
 - Variety of topics: medicine, surgery, decision making, radiology, professionalism, and more.

The screenshot displays the REdRC (Residency Education Resource Center) website. At the top, there are logos for APMA (American Podiatric Medical Association) and REdRC. Navigation links include HOME, FIND A LECTURE, RESIDENT RESOURCES, and ABC. The main content area is titled "First Year" and includes a "Back To Top" link. Below this, a grid of 12 lecture cards is shown, each with a title, presenter name, and a "COMPLETED" status indicator.

Resident Resources

In addition to lectures, REdRC provides useful resources and links for subscribers to further your education and help you get started with your podiatric career. From fellowship opportunities and tools to improve clinical presentations, to information about student loan repayment and job openings, you can find it on REdRC.

- APMA Young Physician's Program
APMA's Young Physician's Program was established to make sure the next generation of podiatric leaders have a voice within the organization.
- Podiatric Dermatology Resources
REdRC founding sponsor Bako Integrated Physician Solutions has provided access to the Bako Blog archive to give residents a better insight into current pathology practices.
- Board Certification
Your residency is one more step along the way as you build your career in podiatry. For many podiatrists, the next step is seeking board certification.
- Case Presentations
APMA recognizes the academic needs and interests of young physicians. Here you will find thought-provoking cases that will help with everyday practice, as well as preparation for board examinations.
- Coding and Reimbursement Basics
Young physicians frequently enter practice with very little billing and coding experience. The APMA Coding Committee has provided numerous presentations to help new practitioners understand basic principles of coding and reimbursement.
- Career Center
Are you getting ready to finish your residency and enter the job market? Classified ads are available online and in APMA News each month.
- Journal of the American Podiatric Medical Association
JAPMA is the preminent and award-winning scientific journal for America's foot and ankle physicians and surgeons.
- Student Loan Repayment
Learn more about student loan repayment options for podiatric medical school graduates.
